This Agreement is made on _____ between DCI Consultants Private Limited (“DCI” or “Company”) and the undersigned employee (“Employee”). It supplements the Employee’s employment contract and applies to all duties for DCI and to all present or future client assignments undertaken during DCI employment.

1. What is confidential information

“Confidential Information” means non-public information belonging to, held by, or received from DCI, a DCI client, or another party in connection with the Employee’s work, whether written, spoken, electronic, visual or otherwise, and whether or not marked confidential.

Examples include candidate CVs, NRIC / FIN and contact details, payroll and personnel records, employee compensation, pricing and mark-ups, tenders, contracts and master agreements, customer / supplier information, technical specifications, security settings, credentials, system configurations, software, source code, project plans, reports and trade secrets. It also includes copies, extracts, photographs, notes and information obtained at a client workplace.

2. Duty to protect and use information properly

The Employee shall keep Confidential Information strictly confidential, use it only as needed for authorised work, and disclose it only to persons authorised by DCI or the relevant client who have a legitimate work-related need to know.

The Employee shall not use Confidential Information for personal advantage, another employer, a competing business or any unauthorised purpose; share it with friends or family; or disclose, copy, photograph, record, download, forward or publish it except as authorised for work.

3. Client assignments and workplace requirements

When deployed to a client, the Employee shall comply with the client’s reasonable, notified confidentiality, data-protection, workplace, physical-security and IT-security policies. Client information remains confidential even if accessed through DCI systems or received indirectly.

The Employee must not take client material to another project, employer or client. Where a client requires an additional lawful confidentiality undertaking, the Employee shall cooperate with the applicable onboarding process.

4. Personal data and data protection

The Employee shall handle personal data of job applicants, employees, clients, suppliers and other individuals only for authorised purposes and in accordance with the Personal Data Protection Act 2012 (PDPA), applicable laws, DCI instructions and relevant client requirements.

Personal data must be accessed on a need-to-know basis and must not be shared with unauthorised persons, transferred to unapproved systems or destinations, or retained longer than authorised. The Employee shall follow applicable requirements for secure storage, transfer and disposal.

5. Devices, systems, accounts and external tools

The Employee shall use only approved accounts, equipment, storage and communications channels for Confidential Information, protect passwords and access tokens, use required multifactor authentication, and lock or secure devices when unattended.

Unless specifically authorised, the Employee shall not send work information to a personal email or messaging account, personal cloud storage, removable drive, public repository, social-media platform, or unapproved external application or automated processing service. The Employee shall not bypass security controls or share access credentials.

6. Lost information, incidents and suspected breaches

The Employee must immediately inform the designated DCI manager / security or data-protection contact, and follow applicable client escalation procedures, upon discovering or suspecting loss, misdirection, unauthorised access or disclosure, phishing, compromised credentials or other security incidents involving Confidential Information.

The Employee shall cooperate with lawful containment and investigation instructions, preserve relevant evidence and avoid independent disclosure or deletion that could compromise the response. The Company or client, as applicable, will determine external notifications required by law.

7. Information excluded from confidentiality restrictions

This Agreement does not restrict information that the Employee can demonstrate: (a) became publicly available without breach of any duty; (b) was lawfully known to the Employee without a confidentiality obligation before disclosure; (c) was lawfully received from a third party free to disclose it; or (d) was developed independently without using Confidential Information.

8. Lawful disclosure and employee rights

Nothing in this Agreement prevents disclosures required or permitted by applicable law, good-faith reports to lawful regulators or law-enforcement agencies, participation in lawful investigations, seeking confidential legal advice, or exercising employment rights permitted by law. Where legally permitted and practicable, the Employee shall promptly notify DCI before compelled disclosure so that appropriate protective steps may be considered.

9. Return, removal and deletion

Upon DCI's or the client's request, transfer, completion of a client assignment, suspension of access, or end of employment, the Employee shall promptly return all equipment, records, keys and materials; cease using confidential accounts and information; and securely delete authorised local copies as directed, subject to applicable record-retention or legal-hold instructions.

The Employee shall not retain copies or backups for personal use, and shall confirm compliance in writing if reasonably requested.

10. How long the obligations last

These duties apply throughout employment, including all client assignments. After the employment relationship ends, confidentiality obligations continue for as long as the relevant information remains confidential or is protected by law, without preventing the lawful use of the Employee's general skills, knowledge and experience.

11. Ownership, breaches and remedies

All Confidential Information and associated materials remain the property of DCI, the relevant client or the rightful owner. This Agreement transfers no ownership or licence to the Employee beyond the access needed to perform authorised duties.

A breach may result in access restrictions, lawful disciplinary action up to termination of employment, and appropriate legal remedies subject to Singapore law. DCI may take reasonable steps to protect its own or a client's information.

12. General terms and Singapore law

This Agreement is governed by the laws of Singapore. The Singapore courts shall have jurisdiction over disputes arising from it, subject to any mandatory legal dispute-resolution requirements. If a provision is unenforceable, the remaining provisions continue to apply to the extent permitted by law.

Any changes must be agreed in writing. This Agreement does not impose a non-compete restriction and does not replace statutory rights or the Employee's existing lawful employment terms.
